

SGG Business Analyst

Join SGG as a business analyst and be greater than you imagined as you help design and deliver ground-breaking solutions that transform clients' businesses.

As a business analyst, you will work with leading organizations on significant issues across their businesses. You will be involved in the creation, design and build of new strategies and business models, through to helping clients integrate them. Along the way, you'll get the opportunity to develop strong leadership, problem solving, and people management skills. You will:

- Focus on project delivery for clients across business and government sectors
- Build skills across multiple management consulting functional areas
- Collaborate with project teams made up of people with diverse and complementary skills

Your daily responsibilities will vary by project, but you may find yourself:

- Conducting industry and client research and analysis to identify new value sources
- Supporting client strategy analysis requirements
- Performing rigorous, financial, business case, statistical and other quantitative analyses
- Writing reports and presentations to communicate clearly and concisely

Working across the spectrum of management consulting activity and industries, you will have great opportunities to broaden your experiences and tackle complex, stimulating challenges. This will enable you to accumulate the requisite skills and experiences to reach your career goals.
